

ABSTRACT

A device for hands-free operation of a mobile telephone in an automobile, wherein the device is coupled to a mobile telephone and to an automobile amplifier. The device includes an amplifier for amplifying signals received by the mobile telephone and transmitting the signals through an automobile power source to the automobile amplifier for broadcast over an automobile audio speaker. The device also includes a microphone for enabling the driver to speak over the mobile telephone without having to hold the phone.

T020:00000000